

SPRING CLEANING STARTS WITH YOUR CISTERN AND AN ENVIRONMENTALLY FRIENDLY CLEANCISTERN.COM BARGAIN

The May long weekend is finally here, along with predictions for a hot, dry summer. Time to get serious about Spring Cleaning and to make certain that you have a safe supply of clean water.

It's an Island tradition – the long-awaited time that some of us officially open the cottage, start our gardens and begin plans for the best summer ever. Time to also turn attention to cisterns that Health Canada advises should be cleaned and disinfected every year. And to take some of the water worries out of summer 2015.

This year there's a big difference. Gone are the old methods of draining cisterns before cleaning. Water is not being wasted and money is also being saved as people take advantage of this new, environmentally friendly cistern cleaning technology.

"The savings are considerable, typically one-third of the total cost, compared to previous methods that required draining and replacement of water," says Geoffrey Montgomery-Swan, whose innovative technology is ushering in a new era of water conservation across our region.

"Our Clean Cistern customers are not only thrilled at our prices, but also by no longer draining and wasting hundreds of gallons of precious, expensive water," he reports. "They're also reassured that we don't put a worker inside a cistern with brushes and bleach, for which there is legal and insurance liability."

There are no 'perfect' water collection systems. Eventually, all cisterns will have a build up of particulates and debris. Anyone who didn't disconnect downspouts during pollen season can now avoid unpleasant smells and risks to health. And stagnant water is refreshed as the cistern is cleaned.
